SCHOOL KIDS MAY MEET JUSTIN BIEBER

Brian Chiasson

Justin Bieber, the worldwide sensation from Canada, is offering school kids a contest to meet him.

That means, it's possible, he could be coming to Mississauga next year, depending on the efforts of students in Mississauga schools.

All schools are invited to raise funds for an educational charity called Pencils of Promise, which has organized a campaign called School4All.

This is a charity that Bieber claims is really helpful.

A school gets one ticket for every donation of $25 that goes to this School4All campaign.

Students can raise as many donations of $25 as they wish, helping to educate children, and the local students get one ticket in exchange for each donation.

Can you imagine local students bumming $25 off their parents, as well as five to ten of their neighbours. This charity could get rich fast.

Bieber claims that all around the world, Pencils of Promise is building schools for kids who don't have access.

January 31 is the deadline for donations.

The three schools to raise the most funds will win plane tickets for all their students to meet at the highest selling school to enjoy a meeting with Bieber.

Brian Chiasson has 25 years in newspapers and radio.
